

SOUTH BRUNSWICK
CROSSROADS NORTH & SOUTH SUMMER READING LIST
June 2008

*For guidance in making your choice, please see your teacher or librarian.

Dear Parent or Guardian:

We hope that you will support your child and encourage him/her to begin this assignment early in the summer. South Brunswick Library, Barnes & Noble at Princeton Market Fair and in North Brunswick, Borders in East Brunswick and West Windsor, and Half Price Books in Montgomery Shopping Center have copies of the list and will try to make as many of the choices available to you as they can. You may also order through the school – look for order forms to come home in May.

Crossroads Language Arts Department

DIRECTIONS

1. Choose one of the books listed below.
2. As you read, write a total of ten open-ended questions from the beginning, middle, and end of your book. You are not required to write your answers, but be prepared to discuss them.
3. Hand in your questions to your Language Arts teacher during the first two full days of school.
4. You will be included in a discussion with others who chose to read the same book. On the day the discussion groups meet, the schedule is suspended so that the whole building can be involved.

What is an open-ended question?

Open-ended questions cannot be answered with a simple yes or no.

They cannot be answered with one or two words.

They do not check facts.

They require thought, explanations, opinions, insight, and support from the text.

There is not only one answer.

For example:

What do the character's actions show you about his personality?

Why is the setting so important to the story?

How would I have behaved/felt in this situation?
