Dear Families,

As we begin the year with virtual instruction, I wanted to articulate the vision of this remote model. If you listened in on any forum or read the information on our district website, you know that we are looking at remote instruction differently than the Spring. The 2020-2021 school year begins on Tuesday, September 8th with a set schedule for students and a plan for daily instruction from their teachers. Students are expected to attend their classes daily and adhere to all virtual instruction expectations. We learned a lot from our experience in the Spring and have put together district virtual expectations that we are asking all students and families to adhere to. We want to provide and cultivate the most optimal learning experience for our students and feel these expectations will help all students and families start the school year with much success!

District Virtual Expectations

You can access the virtual expectations here and please view the attached video for a more interactive explanation of the expectations. Additionally, for those students in high school, please see this document for some further explanation to the expectations.

Other resources for your convenience are a district created website completely for SEL..you can find it here. We have also added a button to our district homepage called '20-'21 Instruction where you can locate up-to-date information regarding remote instruction.

Once school begins, your child's teacher will help to practice these expectations and work with families to acclimate to this virtual instructional world we are embracing!

Many thanks,

Jennifer Diszler
